MacDonald Comes To See Hoover With Basic Points Settled

London, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald, according to present plans, will go directly to Washington, after landing in New York on Oct. 4, for conversations with President Hoover regarding the naval disarmament problem.

It was stated in well-informed quarters this afternoon that the Prime Minister probably will spend several days at the capital and will then go to Philadelphia on Oct. 7 to meet the doctors who attended him during his illness there on his last visit to the United States.

WOULD HOOVER GO?
Washington, Sept. 16.—(UP)—Week end developments in the naval armament situation have altered tentative plans for the proposed five power conference and the representatives of the France, Italy, Japan, Great Britain and the United States are expected to meet in January 1930 instead of December this year, Secretary of State Stimson said today.

President Hoover has made no move toward personal participation in the conference if it is held outside the United States. Unofficial reports have indicated the conference would take place in London.

AGREEMENT VERY NEAR
London, Sept. 16.—(UP)—An Anglo-American naval agreement has almost been reached, it was said in authoritative quarters today. Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald will not discuss anything but naval matters on his coming visit to Washington the same authority added.

(Any Anglo-American agreement will be subject to the decisions of a five-power conference to be called later.)

The only question now under discussion is a matter of three cruisers armed with 8-inch guns. The United States wants 21 such cruisers and Britain 15. The question is whether Britain's quota shall be raised to 18, making the ratio 21 to 18, or the United States quota be cut to 18, making the ratio 18 to 15.

5 Power Parley In January.
The five power conference most likely will be held in mid-January. It will be regarded as a renewal of the 1921 conference at Washington which limited capital ships.

Great Britain wants a total of 50 cruisers, including 15 with 8-inch guns and 35 with 6-inch guns, making a total tonnage of 339,000. The United States wants a total of 36, including 21 with 8-inch guns and 15 with 6-inch guns, totalling 315,000 tons.

It was disclosed today that Premier MacDonald plans to visit old friends in Philadelphia en route back to New York after he leaves Washington on Oct. 10.

May Abolish Submarines.
The agreement, it was said on the highest authority, embodies a specification that Britain and the United States agree that total abolition of submarines is desirable.

Britain's cruiser demands cover the entire British Empire, in similar fashion to the agreement on battleships at the Washington arms conference.

MacDonald and President Hoover have agreed that there should be a downward curve in naval construction until 1936. In 1935 the political situation of the world will be reviewed to see if further reductions are possible.

The basis of the proposed reduction is purely political, it was emphasized, and Britain hitherto has been handicapped in naval reduction by the world-wide political situation. Britain will not reduce her fleet beyond the level of security. That point was made clear.

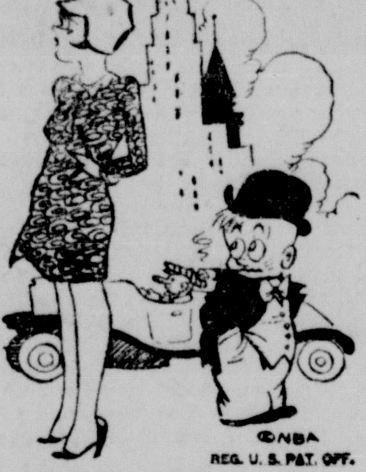

MacDonald Has Support.
MacDonald claims to have the united support of the entire admiralty board, he plans to reorganize conditions of employment at navy dockyards and in the navy. He proposes to substitute a system by which employment will be continuous instead of sporadic, thereby meeting the criticism that his naval reductions will increase unemployment.

MacDonald plans to arrive in Washington on Oct. 4. He will leave on Oct. 10. He will visit friends in Philadelphia for a few hours and attend a dinner in New York the same night.

He will leave New York on Oct. 14 for Buffalo. He will visit the American side of Niagara Falls and then take a train for Toronto, where he hopes to meet Premier W. L. Mackenzie King. From Toronto he will go to Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec, sailing for England aboard the Duchess of York on Oct. 25.

ED. CANTLIN OF
ROCKFORD DIES
FROM EXPOSURE

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 16.—(UP)—Exposure, when he lay for twelve hours unconscious on the beach of Pine Lake, near Chetek, Wis., caused the death Saturday night of Edward P. Catlin, 19, son of one of Rockford's most prominent families.

Young Catlin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman E. Catlin, returned from Pine Lake Friday, leaving their son alone there for the week end. The boy paddled out in the darkness onto the lake in a canoe. It is believed that a storm blew up quickly, capsized his frail craft and hurled him into the chilly water.

Catlin, who was a good swimmer, apparently clung to the canoe while he removed his clothing and then struck out for shore. Evidently he had just enough strength left to crawl up onto the beach, where he sank unconscious.

Vacationists noticed a light burning in the cottage Saturday and later found the overturned canoe floating on the lake, with a paddle and some of Catlin's clothing nearby. Organizing a search, they found the young dying on the beach.

Rockford Thieves
Steal Dixon Auto;
Found Badly Burned

A Chrysler sport roadster belonging to Percy Strub of this city, was stolen from the streets of Rockford Saturday night and a short time later was discovered burning on a side road west of the city, where it had been abandoned after being run into a concrete culvert abutment.

Mr. Strub had driven to Rockford with friends Saturday evening, parked and locked his car in the business section. The burning car had been found, the flames extinguished and towed to a Rockford garage before the owner discovered his loss.

It was reported that the automobile thieves wired around the locking device, causing a short circuit in the electrical system, which caused the car to catch fire. The car was badly damaged from the intense heat, the flames apparently having been fanned by a stiff breeze for some time before the thieves decided to abandon the machine.

Rhinelanders Protest At Reported Plans of French Army

Paris, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Reports to the effect that French troops would replace British troops in the Rhineland as the British evacuated their posts were denied by the Quai D'Orsay today.

It was explained that the stories published in London and reprinted in Paris had as their basis only the plan for the Rhineland high commission to transfer its offices from Mennem to Wiesbaden, where it would naturally have a small military establishment befitting its dignity.

GERMANS FEARFUL

London, Sept. 16.—(UP)—Sir William Thwaite, commander of the British troops in the Rhineland, has been urgently summoned to London to confer with Secretary of War Tom Shaw and possibly with Prime Minister MacDonald as a result of new complications in connection with the evacuation of the occupied German territory, the Wiesbaden correspondent of the London Daily Express said today.

Stanley Bishop, the correspondent, informed his newspaper that the German inhabitants of the Wiesbaden sector which is being evacuated by the British, were highly indignant over an announcement that at least two French regiments will enter the territory as soon as the British have left.

It had been understood that only a nominal French guard, under the supervision of the Rhineland high commission, would be maintained in the territory heretofore occupied by the British. It developed, however, that the French intend to move their troops in as soon as the British have completed their evacuation of the zone, and that they would be quartered throughout the Wiesbaden district.

The English, meanwhile, continued with their plans to evacuate the district as agreed upon during the recent Hague conference. The first British soldiers to leave the zone were welcomed here with great enthusiasm yesterday. The troops, iron-helmeted, arrived at the Victoria station.

"Some of us are not quite keen about coming back," one sergeant said. "We liked the Germans and they liked us. And some of us left girls behind."

The first British troops to return to home soil was a detachment of 60 men who landed at Dover. They were very happy to get back. Some of them had not seen British soil in several years.

WAR OFFICE DENIES

The war office denied that General Thwaite had been summoned to London to confer with Tom Shaw, or other diplomatic complications have arisen over the Rhineland. The war office also denied that French regiments would be stationed at Wiesbaden when the British leave, although a French battalion will be drafted to the Wiesbaden area to provide the usual guard for the high commissioner.

NATIVES BID FAREWELL

Wiesbaden, Germany, Sept. 16.—(UP)—Scores of British soldiers were ready to depart for England today with their wives and children, signaling the first concerted move by Great Britain to evacuate the Rhineland zone it had occupied since early post-war days.

Advance parties of British soldiers already have left the occupation zone, and the first important detachment was expected to leave here some time today.

Those who left here yesterday were given a rousing farewell by the natives, who sang "Tipperary," the song which more than a decade ago had been sung by the British as they went into battle. The whole British contingent is expected to evacuate this zone within the next few weeks.

VAUDEVILLE TEAMS
HAVE BAD SMASHUP
IN CAR NEAR HERE

Actor Badly Hurt When
Sedan Crashed Into Tree
East Of City

Fred and Jane Rinehart and Inez and DeWynne, two vaudeville teams, enroute by automobile from Hollywood, Cal., to Winnipeg, Canada, were near death near here on the Lincoln Highway this morning when the Studebaker sedan in which they were riding, crashed into a tree near the Crawford's Maples corner east of Dixon.

Mr. Rinehart, owner and driver of the car was the most seriously injured and was rushed to the Dixon public hospital.

He sustained a deep gash over the right eye, broken glass cut a gaping wound in his right side and his back was wrenched. Rinehart and Mr. DeWynne, who was riding in the front seat with him, were thrown through the glass on each side of the car. Mr. Rinehart being thrown against the embankment and Mr. DeWynne to the center of the paving.

Both of the women riding in the rear seat escaped with only minor bruises.

Crashed Early Today.

The accident happened at 5:15 this morning near the Crawford's Maples corner about five miles east of Dixon on the Lincoln Highway. The two couples were travelling with their vaudeville equipment in the rear of the car.

They opened their car at the Riviera theater in Chicago, then proceeding to Winnipeg, Canada, to appear on the Orpheum circuit. They had been traveling since 10 o'clock last night.

Mrs. Rinehart and the vaudeville team of Inez and DeWynne were taken to a local hotel, where they were recuperating from the shock of the accident and their minor injuries. The car skidded on the wet paving, swerved into the ditch on the south side of the road and crashed head on into one of the huge maple trees. From the force of the impact, the heavy machine bounded back, striking another car, a Chevrolet coupe from Morrison and crashed into another tree. The Morrison car was only slightly damaged and was able to proceed under its own power.

The big sedan was practically demolished in the double crash and had to be hauled to a local garage.

Both couples planned to remain in Dixon until tomorrow, when they will proceed by train to Chicago. Mr. Rinehart being removed from the Dixon hospital to a Chicago hospital.

16 ARABS KILLED

SEA OF GALILEE

Raiding Bedouin Tribesmen Repulsed With Heavy Losses

Jerusalem, Sept. 16.—(AP)—News of a new outbreak at Hattin, near the Sea of Galilee, in which raiding Bedouin tribesmen lost 16 dead and many wounded before being dispersed by British military patrols today again disturbed the peaceful atmosphere of Palestine, where no trouble between Jews and Arabs had been reported for a week.

There was a tendency to regard the affair as purely local. No fears were entertained that the affair would in any way affect the proposed visit of 200 prominent Egyptian Arabs to Palestine for the purpose of bringing about a reconciliation of the two peoples.

Reports to the Jewish telegraphic agency state there is growing feeling among Egyptian Arabs and the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, recognized Moslem leader, is partly responsible for the recent troubles in the country. Dissatisfaction with the Grand Mufti is said to be partly due to his alleged failure to fully account for funds raised in Egypt for repairing the mosque of Omar.

The first claim for loss of life in the recent riots has been filed in Jerusalem by Meir Feinstein of Chicago for the death of his son, Harry, a student at the Hebrew Yeshiva, where more than a dozen American students were among the fifty victims.

Generally, conditions seem to be rapidly assuming normal in Palestine.

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE STARTS TO
DEAL WITH STOCKS

Goes Into Competition
With Chicago Stock
Exchange

Chicago, Sept. 16.—(UP)—The Chicago Board of Trade, with a background of the famous battles of the Armour, the Swifts and the Leifers, and the Chicago Stock Exchange began a battle of finance today as rivals for the millions of dollars which investors are risking daily on the fluctuation of share holdings in big business.

At 10 A. M. the grain exchange inaugurates trading in stocks, a field occupied exclusively heretofore by the stock exchange. The stocks offered by the grain exchange number twenty and include eight issues of five companies which also list their shares on the stock exchange.

The new venture comes as the climax of the Board of Trade's fruitless effort to form a merger with the stock exchange and follows closely the dispute within the Stock Exchange over members who by old laws of the exchange were forbidden to trade on other board. The by-laws were changed by demand of large dealers but the rivalry reached its climax today.

The Board of Trade was authorized by the Illinois legislature at its last session to deal in securities which had been approved by the state blue sky department. Chief support in the new undertaking comes from such firms as Armour & Company of Illinois, Armour & Company of Delaware, Quaker Oats Company, William Wrigley, Jr. Company and Electric Household Utilities Corporation, whose securities are listed on the stock exchange but only one Electric Household common stock has shown any activity here.

Although the Board of Trade enters its new field in a modest way with only twenty issues of fourteen companies, other important concerns are expected to apply for listing as soon as facilities are available for trading.

Stays Open Later

Another challenge of the grain exchange is its plan to remain open an hour later than either the Chicago or New York Exchanges and those who deal in stocks will watch with keen interest to see whether the disparity in time offers opportunity for pool operations which might not be so advantageous to the new market as to the old markets.

The twenty issues announced by Samuel P. Arnott, president of the Board of Trade, total 11,953,748 shares with an aggregate value of more than $562,000,000.

ROCK ISLAND
HOST TO THE
LEGION TODAY

National Commander
McNutt Radios Stirring
Appeal Today

BY FOSTER EATON
United Press Staff Correspondent

Rock Island, Ill., Sept. 16.—(UP)—After two days of unmolested frolicking, the eleventh annual convention of the American Legion, Department of Illinois, swung into serious high gear today along its western front.

Buddies who Saturday and Sunday turned northwestern Illinois upside down and inside out with impromptu hilarity, which included driving trucks into hotel lobbies, temporarily laid aside their make-up to address the important matters of their conclave.

A keynote of more adequate rehabilitation for stricken buddies, and for greater participation by the Legion in the civic development of respective communities, characterized the first business session of the convention called together in Fort Armstrong Theater by Department Commander David L. Shillinglaw.

Rock Island, Ill., Sept. 16.—(UP)—A militant appeal "to the whole of America" for support of the American Legion's hospital construction bill, now lying stagnant in Congress, was issued by Paul V. McNutt, national commander, through the 11th annual convention of the Illinois department today.

McNutt, now in Europe on Legion business, sent an exhaustive message by radio in which he sharply scored "the dilatory tactics" of Congress.

Big Parade Today.
The national commander's challenge was the high point of the annual convocation of the state's legionnaires, who, 3,300 strong, have taken over the tri-cities. A gala parade of bizarre floats and of individual organizations wound a colorful route through the city this afternoon as another feature.

"Only one delay mars the Legion's 1929 program and with your help it can be corrected," McNutt radioed David L. Shillinglaw, Illinois department commander. "Please convey to the members of the convention with all the emphasis at your command that the delay in passage of the hospital construction bill in Congress must not be allowed to go unchallenged. Our mentally ill comrades now neglected entirely or in jails and overcrowded state institutions await your word of assurance that we have not forgotten them and will continue to fight until they receive the care which they deserve."

"Let our convention go on record in a ringing battle cry against the dilatory tactics of those who held up our hospital program. What right has any man to say to our veterans that mental illness is not due to the horrors of conflict and deprivation just because they bravely carried on without complaining for some years afterward?"

"Let the leaders of Congress know in sharp tones they cannot fail to understand that we are now calling upon the whole of America for support to our disabled, promised in 1917 and 1918, and the American people will rally to our aid in no uncertain terms as they did in war time for these same men who did the fighting for them."

McNutt's message also contained high praise for the membership drive and accomplishments of the Illinois department during the past year. Reports of Commander Shillinglaw and associated department officers submitted to the convention today showed the membership now totals 72,066—the largest of any civic organization in the state, and exceeded possibly by only the department of New York in the entire legion organization throughout the world.

Aims Of The Legion.
Outlining the present aims of the Legion in Illinois Commander Shillinglaw told the United Press: "The American Legion has a big place in the civic life of the state. Its 72,066 members are trying to carry out the ideals formulated with an idea of best serving the disabled, their comrades, and the communities in which they live. They are of an age that has great vitality and in their 676 posts are getting training along lines of leadership that is making them more and more capable of assuming real responsibilities as leaders in the community."

Shillinglaw, emphasizing that the Legion "is not militaristic but civic" in concept and purpose, added that its wide range of activities for the improvement of the America of today might perhaps best be summarized by a mere delineation of its various committees, which are:

Rehabilitation, legislation, child welfare, Americanization, athletics, Boy Scouts, aviation, citizens military training corps, Graves registration, membership, memorials, motion pictures, publicity, radio, rifle, school medals and awards, transportation, service officer, medical officer, judge advocate, finance, and adjutant's department.

SUMMER NIGHT PIECE
THE garden is steeped in moonlight.
Full to its high edges with brimming silver.
And the fish ponds brim and darken
And run in little serpent lights soon extinguished.
Lily-pads lie upon the surface, beautiful as the tarnishings on frail old silver.
And the Harvest moon droops heavily out of the sky.
A ripe, white melon, intensely, magnificently, shining.

Former Ashton Girl Bride Walter Moser

Miss Mathilda E. Aschenbrenner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Aschenbrenner, of Ashton, with many friends in Dixon, became the bride of Walter D. Moser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Moser, of Strawberry Point, Iowa, in a pretty ceremony on Thursday afternoon at 2:30, August 29th, at St. Paul's M. E. church in South Bend, Indiana. The service was read by Rev. Paul Benedict. The bride wore an ensemble of tan georgette with hat to match. Mrs. Alfred Hagen, of Lawton, Mich., as maid of honor, wore a dress of brown crepe. Alfred Hagen was best man. Following the wedding a three-course dinner was served at Hotel Oliver.

The newlyweds left immediately on a wedding trip around the lakes and to the Delis of Wisconsin, from there motoring to the home of the groom's parents at Strawberry Point, Iowa. Over fifty relatives and friends gathered on Saturday evening, September 7th for a reception in their honor. Many beautiful and useful gifts were presented to the happy couple. They left there on Monday for Ashton, where they enjoyed a visit at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Moser has been employed by the Tri County Telephone Company of Paw Paw, Michigan, for the past eight years and for the last four years has been supervisor. Mr. Moser has held the position of manager of the Hartford creamery at Hartford, Michigan, for the past six years. NEW YORK-PARIS FASHIONS

IT stands to reason that, if we are going to be ever so feminine again this fall and coming winter, flowers are going to play a large part in the decorative scheme. But these flowers must not resemble just any last year's floral trimming. That would never do. The single flower on the shoulder is out. A long way out. Flowers must be in clusters, at least, and if possible arranged in some new manner. To wear a small wreath of gardenias hung across the shoulder scarf of chiffon frocks is one new fashion that is particularly becoming to the younger woman. This is illustrated in the sketch above as well as a charming idea of Cherust's. She has had much success with her evening gowns that have the low décolletage marked by three large roses in a row. But there is no limit to the decorative possibilities of flowers. They can be large or small but there must be several of them and the newest and smartest are of velvet, either the delicate almost sheer transparent velvet or the even newer weave, panne rayon velvet, that is having such a tremendous vogue for early fall fashions.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
© 1929 by NEA Service Inc.

Is six-year-old John starting to school this fall?

If so, I wouldn't make it much of a subject for conversation. It's far better to let it come about in a natural, quiet way, so that young John won't think the eyes of the entire world are upon him.

Don't allow the other children to scare him by tales of punishment if he whimpers in school, or turns around, or makes a mistake. Nip instantly any talk of cross teachers or principals. Don't permit them to make any such remarks as, "Aren't you frightened, Johnny. You mustn't cry, or the teacher will think you're a big baby. Now don't forget your ABC's or maybe she'll send you home to learn them." And see that the word "whipping" is absolutely taboo.

He Mustn't Be Teased

Johnny's suffering, for of course he is suffering, will only be made more bearable by teasing. The less said about it at all, the better—or at least it should be mentioned only in the most natural, take-it-for-granted way.

Certainly I feel sorry for the little chap who's starting out in the big wide world alone.

It's the first time he's rated as an independent individual, to be judged on his own merits instead of by his mother's love. Heretofore, his rating has been absolutely vicarious. Now there's nothing vicarious about it. It's a man to man game he's going to play—no one to take his part, no one to excuse him, no appeal—just himself.

He senses all this beforehand, little as he may know about the inside workings of a class room. Children are pretty keen little creatures. But in his battle in his miniature world, no one can fight it for him. He's got to do it alone. Up to this time he has been having lessons at home in character training—getting his emotional house in order, so to speak. Now it's time for him to put these things into practice—highest moment, a serious moment, no moment for teasing!

Leave Him Alone

There isn't any use in you, worried mother, taking Johnny to school and staying there with him "till he gets used to it." No, you have to leave him sometime, so the kindest thing to do is to wait until he is duly registered, look as happy as possible, and say, "I'll leave you now, Johnny, for a little while. I'll have something you like for lunch. Good-bye. Then go and don't turn back. Very likely your heart is ready to crack with pity for the poor baby sitting there all alone in that big sea of strangers, so big-eyed and still, and so brave trying to keep back the tears. But it's just one of life's bad moments, that's all. Probably he'll buck right up and get braver with every breath the minute you disappear.

I shouldn't ask him too many questions the first few days; about his feelings, how he likes it, what the teacher is like and so on. Let him get over his daze. All these things can be investigated later on.

Winger-Eckhart Wedding at Ashton

On Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the parsonage in Ashton, Rev. P. O. Bailey, pastor of the Lutheran church, officiated at the simple, yet pretty wedding, of Miss Lena Winger of Dixon and Raymond Eckhart of Franklin Grove. The bride and groom were attended by Miss Helen Winger, sister of the bride, and by Oscar Johnson, as best man, both of Dixon.

The bride was attired in a lovely brown ensemble, and she wore a bridal corsage of pink rosebuds. Miss Helen Winger wore dark blue, and a corsage, also. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Eckhart left immediately for Chicago on their honeymoon. They expect to return about October 15, and will make their home near Franklin Grove, where the bridegroom is a successful farmer. He is a splendid young man and has the high regard of many friends. His bride is a delightful young woman, and has been recently employed as stenographer for Jos. Miller in the latter's garage. During her residence in Dixon she has made scores of friends who join those of Mr. Eckhart in wishing them every happiness and success in the future.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE JACOB

It seems to me that feminists have failed to capitalize the big thing that came out of the women's air derby.

When interviewed, the winner, Mrs. Louise Thaden, asserted that the women's air derby had revealed greater than any displayed heretofore in other races in the air.

Old-fashioned men had thought that because the competition was keen, it would therefore be cattier. They had predicted everything from tears to hair pulling. Their amazement and perhaps consternation deepened when plane after plane settled down and bobbed head after came out from under helmets and cockpits smiling and harranging the winner.

The sportsmanship was deeper than any demonstration that took place on the field. At several points the big planes waited for the little planes when winds were too strong for the wee ones to fight them. When Amelia Earhart's plane developed trouble with its propeller and delay ensued, with spontaneous unanimity the entire derby laid up until she could hop off again with them. When the planes had landed it was discovered that Amelia Earhart had carried the luggage of several of her competitors. With that fine smile of hers, this admirable sportsman explained it away. "They were having a hard time with overload. I had to have some ballast. I thought it might as well be their luggage."

There is something symbolic in the passing of aviation from the stage of pioneer "lone eagle" adventure into a stage of cooperation. Simultaneously, it seems to me, feminism is passing into that same stage.

GIVE AND TAKE

Feminism, like aviation, had its "lone eagle" individualistic stage when women leaders were primarily egoists fighting for personal places in a man-made world. They found little time for constructive cooperation.

Now, like aviation, feminism has crossed into the higher stage of practical give and take. Women and airplanes are no longer on the defensive. They have "arrived," are accepted. Their place in modern society is secure.

Therefore women can abandon the earlier pugnacious feminism. The time is ripe now for a higher development. It is the moment of cooperation and a spirit of sportsmanship that can stand to see other women win.

It took a spectacular event like the air derby to crystallize this change.

A "SUCCESS CLINIC"

In New York a big organization of women is putting into practice the spirit of this sportsmanlike cooperation. The Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries, founded six years ago for the purpose of advertising women's business and professional achievements, now has developed an interesting side-purpose. It is called a "success clinic."

Several times a year meetings are arranged for members for the sole purpose of making contacts for members to help them towards success in their given line. It may be an artificial means of inducing success. But it has been surprising how many big advertising women, manufacturers, owners of businesses and other feminine successes respond. They come, not to get anything out of it for themselves, but to help lesser lights in their very own lines climb a bit higher towards the heights they have reached.

Surely, the age of sportsmanship and cooperation in feminism has arrived.

GOALS THAT LIE WITHIN.

Commander Donald B. MacMillan, sliding through the Arctic in his little schooner in search of the things a stay-at-home can never have, stumbled on to one of the most interesting discoveries of his entire trip the other day.

Far up on the shores of desolate Countess of Warwick Sound, MacMillan's party found traces of one of the earliest Arctic expeditions in history—the expedition commanded by Sir Martin Frobisher, which sailed from London in the year 1576, seeking the fabulous Northwest Passage and some equally fabulous gold mines.

On a little hillside, MacMillan found the foundation stones of the house which Frobisher's men erected. Nearby were the forgotten shaft and debris of the mine they had dug.

For more than 350 years those relics had stood neglected, monuments to the energy, and daring of an Elizabethan explorer and his group of nameless heroes.

Frobisher failed in both objects of his great quest. He did not find the great Northwest Passage, which he had thought would provide British navigators with a safe short cut to China. Indeed, no one found it until Amundsen, more than three centuries later, pushed a sailing vessel through it, taking three years for the job. Blocked with ice, the long-sought passage might just as well not exist at all.

And Frobisher's hunt for gold was equally unlucky. He did unearth a great quantity of beautiful yellow metal, in his camp there on Countess of Warwick Sound; and a great many tons of this were gleefully taken to London in Frobisher's creaky ships. But the old sea dog was unlucky. The metal turned out to be, not gold, but iron pyrites—the "fool's gold" that has disappointed so many fortune-hunters.

Thus Frobisher abandoned his Arctic voyages, and the relics of his camp lay deserted for 350 years—until MacMillan came along to turn them up and reawaken our interest in tough, determined old Sir Martin.

Yet old Sir Martin, and the hard-fisted sailor men who went with him, don't need any of our sympathy—not even at this late date. For, like all Arctic explorers, they found what they went after, even if the Northwest Passage and the gleaming gold mines did elude them.

What were they after? Well, how is a stay-at-home to say? Perhaps Commander MacMillan could tell us, or Byrd, or Dr. Nansen; and if the ghost of Roald Amundsen could come back from north of Spitzbergen, it, too, could tell us. Yet perhaps all they could give us, after all, would be a few lines from an old poem—

They sit at home and they dream and dally,
Raking the embers of long-dead years—
But ye go down to the haunted Valley,
Light-hearted pioneers.
They have forgotten they ever were young,
They hear your songs as an unknown tongue. . .
But the flame of God through your spirit stirs,
Adventurers—Oh, Adventurers!

NOT SO WILD, AFTER ALL.

Moving pictures and novels in the last few years have delighted in picturing modern college students as a gay, uproarious and somewhat self-indulgent crew. We have heard many wild tales of "petting," drinking and what-not on the campus.

Good Housekeeping magazine recently decided to investigate. It sent Rita S. Halle out to look into the matter at first hand. Miss Halle, having investigated thoroughly, reports as follows:

There is far less drinking in the colleges now than there was a decade ago. Not more than a tenth of one per cent of the co-eds of the country are guilty of improper conduct. All but an insignificant minority of students, both men and women, are in college to study, and have neither the time nor the inclination to dissipate.

You might bear that in mind the next time someone regales you with wild stories of flaming college youth.

The new golf balls are appearing on several courses. The consensus of opinion seems to be that if they are no better than the old ones they couldn't be any worse.

A hunter in Abyssinia traded a bottle of cognac for four baboons and three monkeys. If that had been the American brand, he could have had his hooch and his monkeys, too.

The wooden cow then barked some more. "I'm scared," I'm scared and sore. I've been so badly shaken up I think I've had enough. This cow's not friendly. Not at all. Oh, gee, suppose I would fall. I'd rather ride a real live cow that wouldn't be so rough."

"Well, jump right off," one Tiny cried. "If you're afraid, let someone ride who knows just how to do it. Surely, that cow's not so bad. He's made of wood and should be tame. I must admit the way you ride looks very, very sad."

So Coppy slipped down to the earth and ran for all that he was worth. He simply didn't want to take the chance of being kicked. And then he shouted, "Someone go ahead and stage a brilliant show of riding. I am not ashamed to say that I am licked."

Then Clowdy bravely raised his head, looked at the bunch and calmly said, "Please all stand back."

I'm going to ride this cow and ride him right. I'll hop on bravely as can be and I will be a sight to see. I'll promise that I won't fall off—all though, perhaps, I might."

The cow stood still while Clowdy jumped upon its back. Oh, how he thumped. "Now, watch me, boys," he loudly cried. "This ought to be real good." And then he said, "Giddyap, there cow, I want to show the Tini's how to ride you very nicely like a classy rider should."

The cow began to moo real loud. Then laughter broke out in the crowd. They knew the cow was getting mad. Soon it began to tear. At first this seemed like thrilling sport, but then it quickly stopped. real short. This took poor Clowdy by surprise and he sailed through the air.

(Clowdy lands away up high in the next story.)

BATTLE OF HARLEM HTS.

On Sept. 16, 1776, the Battle of Harlem Heights, in which the Americans repulsed the British troops, was fought on what is today the site of Barnard college of Columbia University.

British battleships had opened fire on the Americans the preceding day and a general panic ensued. General Washington, galloping down to the scene of the battle, came upon the disordered troops. He succeeded in getting his army off without loss and then took post at King's bridge, beginning to strengthen and fortify his lines.

While Washington was thus engaged, the British advanced and on Sept. 16 the Battle of Harlem Heights took place, in which great bravery was shown by the Connecticut and Virginia troops, the two commanding officers being killed.

This skirmish was the first taste of victory for the Americans and encouraged the troops.

However, a few days later the British warships came up the Hudson past the forts, brushing aside the boasted obstructions, destroying the Americans' little fleet and obtaining command of the river.

After a series of unsuccessful maneuvers, Washington was forced to retreat across New Jersey.

The Church of Scotland was established in 1869 and confirmed in 1868. It is Presbyterian, the ministers all being of equal rank.

Daily Health Talk

By O. J. ORY, D. D. S., Garyville, La.

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Institute are at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

If the people in general would realize just how very important good, sound teeth are to their health, they would never neglect to make regular visits to their dentist for a complete and thorough examination. I might say here that every six months is not too often to have the teeth examined.

It is a grave mistake to delay visiting the dentist until one is forced to go on account of toothache, because then in the great majority of cases, it is too late to do the best that is possible to be done for the patient.

A tooth should be filled as soon as possible after the beginning of decay, so as to insure its usefulness with the smallest filling. It stands to reason that a tooth with a large filling or inlay will not stand the same crushing strength as one with a small filling.

It is a common occurrence to see a tooth with a large filling or inlay split in half under ordinary mastication whereas the same tooth had it been filled before decay had progressed so much, it is more than likely that it would not have broken in half during mastication. Again, the sooner a tooth is filled after it has started to decay, the smaller the filling will be and of course will cost less, hurt less and not be so conspicuous in the patient's mouth; and will not require so much time to be done.

Of course, the greatest advantage in filling a cavity in a tooth as soon after the discovery of decay, is the fact that the work can be done without devitalizing the pulp or nerve as it is commonly referred to. It is generally known that many teeth that have been devitalized, later develop what is known as focal infection at the root ends, and such a focus is a very grave menace to one's health. The fact that a tooth feels comfortable in one's mouth does not mean that it is free from focal infection, and can be retained without causing considerable harm to that person.

When one will consider for just a moment that the same blood that circulates all through the body, also touches at the end of the teeth, and thereby can pick up germs from those teeth with focal infection and carry the same to the heart and settle on the valves of that very important organ and cause it to function badly; or that infection can settle in the joints and cause arthritis.

It might be well to mention at this point that a single tooth with a little pus at the end of the root can cause that person to suffer with rheumatism and other ailments.

Dr. Charles Mayo maintains that 87 percent of all deaths and sicknesses are caused by acute or chronic infection, many of which have their origin in the mouth.

Focal infection from "dead" teeth has discussed here to impress readers how much it is to their advantage to have their teeth examined regularly and frequently.

Transported Liquor Across River With A Submarine Cable

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 14.—(UP)—A method of transporting liquor across the Detroit River by submarine cable, which rivalled in effectiveness the mythical "pipe line to Canada," has been discovered by federal agents.

For some months government patrols, who maintain a rigid blockade on the river have been puzzled by the falling off in attempts to run liquor from Canada in speedboats.

An investigation revealed that as the government boats scurried up and down the stream, rum runners had been calmly dragging huge cargoes of contraband Scotch and rye beneath them on an improvised cable.

The runners' scheme was simple. They loaded a large sled with liquor on Mud Island, near the Canadian shore, attached it to the cable, let it sink to the sandy bottom of the stream and dragged it slowly to an abandoned boathouse at Ecorse on the American shore.

The cable was discovered and dismantled but both terminals of the unique system were deserted and no arrests were made. It was believed at least one other cable is in operation and government agents feared that because of the simplicity of the scheme many lines might soon be laid.

KIP IN KANSAS CITY.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 14.—(UP)—Leonard Kip Rhinelander, wealthy New York scion and husband of a Negro hackman's daughter, paid a mysterious visit to Kansas City today while rumors were revived that final settlement of his marital troubles impended.

Rhinelander, however, insisted his stop over here had to do with his sand and gravel business in the west and had nothing to do with divorce courts.

He arrived here from Las Vegas, Nev., today and went into seclusion with a counsel and business associate at the Hotel Muehlebach.

He refused to discuss reports that Alice Jones Rhinelander, his New Rochelle Negro wife, was en route to meet him here for an amicable separation or divorce.

CELEBRATED ESCAPE—FINED

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 14.—(UP)—Helmsman Joe Collins did not sail with the Andaste Monday for the first time this season. Yesterday he learned of the ship's fate and decided to celebrate his good fortune. He was subsequently arrested here and fined $25 and costs for intoxication. Collins said he couldn't pay the fine because his money and personal effects were aboard the Andaste.

MANY CANDIDATES TO SUCCEED JUDGE DIETZ OF MOLINE

No Appointment Will Be Made For Ten Days
Or More, Report

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 16—(UP)—Appointment of a successor to fill the vacancy on the supreme court bench caused by the death of Justice Cyrus E. Dietz at Moline Friday, within the next ten days is unlikely, it was learned here today. There also is a remote possibility that because of the shortness of the period the appointment would have to run, Governor Louis L. Emmerson will make no effort to fill it.

Justice Dietz was buried at Moline yesterday with state solemnity. The funeral was attended by state officers and by state dignitaries as well as by representatives of federal and county courts and state legal and civic and fraternal associations.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom headed the list of honorary pallbearers which included United States district and circuit judges, Illinois supreme court justices, Circuit judges and prominent attorneys from Chicago and this vicinity.

Floyd E. Thompson, democratic gubernatorial candidate last fall, and Judge Dietz predecessor on the supreme court bench was among the notables present. Governor Emmerson telegraphed a message of sympathy to the family from Dayton, Ohio, where he is attending a Masonic convocation.

Several persons were named today as probable candidates for an appointment to fill the high court vacancy. County Judge Paul Samuel of Jacksonville, who opposed Dietz in the district convention last fall is the most prominent. He was within 38 votes of the nomination with a total of 857 votes cast when the Hancock county delegation, said to have been influenced by Attorney General Carlstrom, swung to Dietz and forced his election.

Samuel also is a candidate for the judgeship at the regular election next June. Others who are expected to make the race are: Judge George H. Wilson, Quincy, who made formal announcement Saturday; Judge W. J. Henderson of Monmouth; and A. L. Halline of Macomb.

Judge Warren H. Orr, Carthage, who opposed Dietz at the polls last year, is expected to again be the Democratic candidate.

POET'S CORNER

TO OLD BESS

Old Bess, you are to me a friend—
Someone on whom I can depend.
You are much better than my car,
And safer than folks think you are.
You always take me far or near
And nothing ever harms your gear.
I never have to buy you gas;
You never eat much grain nor grass.
Your joints don't squeak, you need
No oil;
I'm not afraid your paint will spoil
You have no trimmings I must shine,
But say, old horse, I'm glad you're mine.

Your radiator don't get hot;
You never groan before you trot;
Your inner tubes are of the kind,
Which always keep a pleasant mind.
Your spark plugs never make me
cuss.
Your starter never makes a fuss;
And say! the motor that you have Needs not the balm of grease or salve.

I do not need to honk your horn
And I enjoy to feed you corn.
But that old rattletrap machine
I can't keep filled with gasoline.

You can't go fifty miles per hour,
But still you have much latent power.
Your brakes don't ever slide or slip;
You're always sure to make the trip;
The tax to keep you is not high,
And all your wants I can supply.
You never stall upon the hills,
Or give me any frightful thrills;
The pavement may be dry or wet,
You never skid to make me fret.
A wealth of good you do possess,
Somehow, I love you, dear old Bess.

I'd sooner hold your bridle rein
Than twist a wheel and tire my brain;
There's grace in all your movements too;
Creation still looks up to you,
I like to see you switch your tail
And pace along the highway trail;
The clatter of your shoes sounds sweet.

Upon the cold, compressed concrete,
In weather warm you will proceed;
In winter, too, you quite exceed,
Old horse, to me you're simply great.

More than a "Four", a "Six" or "Eight".

You never need on front and rear
New license plates with every year,
So thus I save a little cash
To buy more meat to make more hash.

Your carburetor does not shirk;
No grinding valves to make them
work;
Your chassis, too, is firmly made;
You'll find the pulchritude parade,
And happiness o'er me floats down,
When I ride you about the town.
To me you never bring remorse,
So, Bess, I'm proud of you, old horse.

EAST GROVE

East Grove—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Elgin of Peoria who have been visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. S. P. Randall and family returned to Peoria Friday accompanied by Miss Muriel Randall who will visit them for several days.

Avid Schmau filed his sio on Thursday.

School opened on Tuesday at the Murphy school district, No. 46, with Mrs. Paden Child as instructor.

The Francis O'Brien family are under quarantine for small pox.

James McPadden was one of the fans from Ohio who witnessed the Cubs- Athletics baseball game in Chicago on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rogers are now nicely settled in their new bungalow where they will be glad to welcome their friends.

Master John Todd is on the sick list.

Leonard McGinty was looking after his interests in this neighborhood this week. It seems good to see Len after an absence of several months as we all had missed his kind face and cheery greeting.

Phillip Murphy visited his brother, Dr. E. S. Murphy of Dixon on Thursday. He found the doctor attending to his patients the same as usual, in spite of the serious injuries he himself received last Sunday evening in an automobile accident near Sterling when he sustained a fractured jaw and several cracked ribs. That same courageous spirit and forgetfulness of self has made Dr. Murphy what he is today, one of the best physicians and surgeons in northern Illinois. We are glad since he was born and raised on a farm in East Grove township.

Mrs. William Todd was in Amboy on Friday.

Supervisor Seth Anderson attended the sessions of the county board in Dixon last week.

WOULD WHIP FUGITIVE
Honolulu, Sept. 14—(UP)—The head tips of the cat o' nine tails will not bite in the flesh of Louis Canidli, Filipino convict, at least not for a while.

The order of the prison board that Candido be whipped with the lashes as a disciplinary measure was restrained temporarily today by Judge A. E. Steadma.

Sandido recently escaped from prison. Previous escapes had ended in his capture and milder forms of punishment. Finding this unavailing, however, the prison board ordered a whipping.

Eleven others who were implicated in the escape have already been punished with the whip.

Candido has also been ordered to spend 60 hours in a darkened cell.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

DR. DORNBLASER WRITES

Nowaues, Bei Potsdam, Germany.
Blutcher Str., Sept. 3, 1929.

Dixon Evening Telegraph:

Yesterday was observed by all the Americans in Berlin as Labor Day. All the American offices were closed and the Stars and Stripes were floating over them. The embassy and consulate, the American Express company, and the Chicago Daily News reading room were all closed for the day. Three thousand, seven hundred singers from all over Germany assembled in the Lust Garden, in Potsdam yesterday afternoon to celebrate Labor day, the association in Germany of which this chorus is a part, consists of 30,000 members.

A few days ago while some of us were looking at the animals in the zoological garden in Berlin, we were suddenly and most unexpectedly confronted by three Dixon friends, Mrs. William Beier, her son Paul and Mrs. Otto Beier, who have been touring Europe for two months. We went to a restaurant where Paul insisted we must take some refreshments. We partook of neither beer nor wine, but greatly enjoyed a glass of ice-cold lemonade.

After a pleasant visit we obtained their consent to visit Nowaues on the following day. They arrived on the electric railway at 11 A. M. I first took them to the Oberlin house where they saw 800 blind, deaf and crippled children who are being treated to earn their own living. One hundred babies, a year old and less, maimed in various ways, lay on cots under the shade trees in the yard outside of the building. It took a full hour to see all of the departments and take a passing look at the shops and the machinery, where the inmates are taught to make a variety of household articles, which meet with ready sale. The superintendent, Pastor Hoppe is now 23 years of age and has had charge of this home for 40 years. He has lately been promoted to superintendent emeritus.

It was then my pleasure to take the visitors to our home in Nowaues where my wife had prepared a good dinner for us. My wife and her mother will long remember the few pleasant hours we had together with these friends in our modest though comfortable home. The rest of the afternoon we spent in Sans Couci park in Potsdam. There are few parks in the world that present such a beautiful view. As you enter the shaded promenade looking up the thirteen terraces to the Sans Couci palace which was the royal residence of Frederick the Great.

We took a half mile walk through the park to the New Palace which was the summer residence of the late emperor. Some of us had been through it before so only Paul Beier and his mother made an inspection of the interior of the immense building. Its many rooms are most elegantly furnished and what is known as the shell room is without a rival in Europe.

On our return we passed Sans Souci palace, took a look at the graves of the dogs beside which Frederick the Great desired to be buried. But his friends and admirers preferred to entomb him in the Garrison Kirche in Potsdam. We then descended the thirteen terraces to the central fountain which reservoir is filled with thousands of gold fish which attract and delight throngs of visitors. As the sun kissed the western horizon our visitors took the train for their stopping place, the Central hotel in Berlin.

This morning, September 3, I accompanied Paul Beier to the Temple of airplane field in Berlin, where he and fourteen other passengers boarded a monoplane to fly to London. It was such a novel undertaking that I wished to see him off. The trip requires eight hours and costs about fifty dollars. The Germans are certainly well equipped with flying machines. The Beier ladies will visit Cassel, their birthplace and later will meet Paul at Southampton and sail for America, September 12.

With them we send our warmest greetings to the people of Dixon.

Most cordially,
Thomas Franklin Dornblaser.

ARREST POLITICIAN
Chicago, Sept. 14—(AP)—John Reid, Republican committeeman from the First Senatorial District, was arrested early today by Federal agents who said they found a large quantity of beer and alcohol at his home.

The warrant for Reid's arrest was based on the statement of a prohibition agent who said he purchased alcohol at the Reid home several days ago.

Reid denied, selling the agent alcohol.

Tilden Wins Singles After Tough Battle

New York, Sept. 16—(AP)—Big Bill Tilden, at 36, has won his seventh national singles tennis crown but only after the hardest fight of his career.

A glance over the tall Philadelphia's six matches in the championship would indicate that several of the youngsters whom Tilden defeated should gain enough in experience to be able to turn the tables on the old master should he elect to try for the title again next year.

Except for his final round rival, Frank Hunter, 35 years old, Tilden's opponents were drawn strictly from among the "younger set" of American tennis.

Against Hunter, John Doeg of Santa Monica, Calif., John Van Ryn of East Orange, N. J., Henry Culley of Harvard, Frank Shields of New York and Donald Strachan of Philadelphia, Tilden won 18 sets and lost 6; won 150 games and lost 102.

Two of his opponents, Hunter and Doeg, carried Big Bill to five sets. Against Van Ryn and Shields Tilden was forced to play four sets. He beat Culley in straight sets, and Strachan in three sets.

Mrs. Hutchins Will Model Chicagoans

The loft studio was rather bare containing only a small portrait bust, a garden figure of a girl and a few tables, pulleys and boxes, partial equipment of the sculptress.

Mrs. Hutchins intends to work on some Chicago subjects soon, she said. "I'd probably better not say whom. It would look too much like I was going after business. But I've seen some interesting faces so I'll have to try their owners know my designs gradually."

"Are some of the faces those of faculty members?" she was asked.

"Yes, maybe."

Home Modernizing Movement Helps Civic Growth

STRANGERS LOCATE IN THE PROGRESSIVE CITIES

Base Judgment on Appearance of Homes

Making your home a better place to live in has a marked influence on the neighborhood in which you live and also in turn on the growth of the city.

A city is but a collection of homes. It lives or dies as the number of homes increases or decreases. The growing city is usually one with many new fine residential streets filled with attractive buildings. The city that is unprogressive, behind the times and slowly dying of dry rot is the city where the homes are old antiquated looking and decidedly out of date with respect to modern conveniences and comforts.

Strangers Judge by Appearance.

The stranger to the city, the casual motorist who is passing through the community judges the city almost entirely by appearance of the homes which he sees.

If the homes are modern in appearance, with those delightful sweeping roof lines that speak of the newer architecture, he receives a pleasant impression. He is immediately led to believe that the city also is progressive and wide awake. The homes which he sees are an index to the community.

Many a business man who is endeavoring to locate in a new community judges his future in a community entirely by the appearance of its homes. With a few days in which to investigate he "looks over the town," allowing his visual impressions to guide him toward making a decision. Whether that decision is satisfactory or otherwise largely depends upon what he sees. The homes determine his future.

Pleasant Homes Make Progressive City.

More than one civic worker has asserted that a community of pleasant homes is a progressive one.

The appearance of the homes is largely an index of the spirit of the people of the community. If these homes are modern both within and without, the owners are living in an environment that induces a spirit of progress. No man can live in an old, weatherbeaten, worn-out house and be progressive. His environment is entirely against him—it sabbages his spirit, fills him with a feeling of discouragement and despair. This feeling of depression is reflected in his attitude on life and his surroundings. It makes a poor town.

The more modern the homes the more progressive the town—that seems to be the rule and an investigation shows that the better towns are those with pleasant homes and beautiful streets.

Every home owner owes it to his city to keep it headed straight on the road to progress. The most profitable way to do this is to swing in line on the home modernization movement—make the home up-to-date as to exterior, and convenient and comfortable on the inside. Modernization is a tonic that cures worn-out homes and cities and makes them alive and progressive once more.

The Heating Plant Depends On Proper Circulation

No matter what type of heating plant you have down in your basement, there is one thing you must keep constantly in mind: Its success depends on the law of circuit. The circulation must be constant.

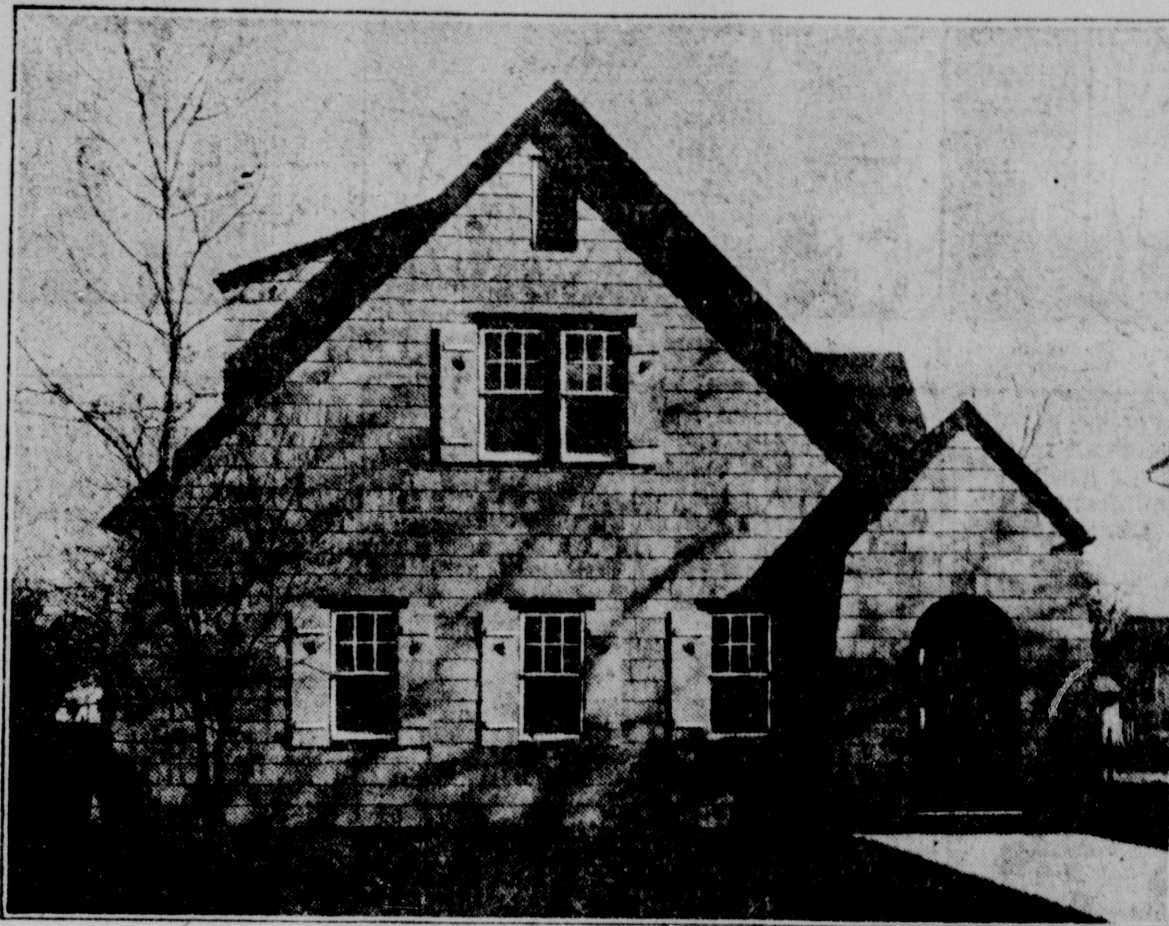

With warm air, for instance, cool air enters the heating chamber and rises, passing through the warm air ducts and out into the rooms of the house. As it cools the air sweeps to the floor entering the cold air register and passing once more to the heating chamber. If this circuit is impeded the flow of air stops and the heating ability of the furnace is impaired.

The same law of circuits works with steam. Steam condenses as it cools and runs back to the boiler so more hot steam may enter the radiators. The hot water keeps in circulation also if the house in to be kept warm.

If you have a warm air furnace in your home, and they are very popular with small houses, make certain that the cold air ducts leading to the heating chamber around the fire box balances with the area of the warm air pipes leading to the various rooms of the house. It is obvious that the amount of air that enters the heating chamber determines the amount of warm air that comes out. If the flow is restricted, then the supply of warm air will not be adequate.

Many home owners complain that they cannot heat distant rooms. The trouble invariably lies with a restricted circulation. The cold air ducts cannot supply the needed air and accordingly certain rooms go cold.

MODERNIZATION ROLLS BACK THE YEARS

No one passing the above house would suspect that it was once the time-worn house pictured at the right. Modernization has done wonders here toward improving both the exterior and interior. These views show what modernizing will do for a house.

Modern Lamp Has Distinctive Beauty

The housewife who wants to keep up-to-date cannot change her furniture at frequent intervals due to its large first cost. She must purchase these heavier and more expensive pieces with permanency in mind.

But accessories such as lamps, can be changed at slighter cost when the need for freshening the interior appears.

New styles in lamps have recently been offered which are a far cry from the flower-decorated, fringed and lace trimmed fixtures of previous days. These newer styles of art lamps are decidedly different. Extreme simplicity distinguishes them and they add a satisfactory note of repose to the home.

While some of the shapes in lamps are startling, the tendency is toward a more restrained modernism which depends for its beauty of grace of contour and loveliness of materials. The shade and the base are units, made to supplement each other. The same design appears in both.

The shape of the base may be odd and the coloring in keeping. The same motif usually is found in the shade that accompanies it. Parschment shades are popular among the newer lamps although a number of lamps with silk and mica shades are being offered as strictly in the mode.

UNWANTED HOUSE NOW NEIGHBORHOOD PRIDE

The quaint looking story and a half house to the left grew from the plain, ugly house below. The old building stood idle and neglected until the magic of modernization touched it and threw back the mantle of years.

Surrounded by long uncared for grass and scraggling trees, it was weather-beaten and forlorn, just an old house that no one wanted to buy or rent.

But when modernized it became one of the show places of the street. It was the talk of the neighborhood. The quaint arched entrance, and shuttered windows add a touch of the unusual to the dwelling. The stained shingled sides are finished in warm tones that speak of hospitality and good will. Today it is the kind of a house that real folks live in.

New Atmosphere and Feeling.

Contrast the two illustrations and see how easily the new atmosphere and feeling have been created. The old porch at the side of the building was torn away because its ginger bread tripping spoke of an architecture of the nineties. No matter how sturdy the timbers or honest the workmanship, the old lines make the house definitely a relic of the past.

In place of the open porch a new design in porches was introduced, a porch with shingle covered pillars and a gabled roof. It is modern in appearance, fully in keeping with the times.

The original siding of clapboards was covered with stained shingles. New window sash and trim were substituted for the old time, high narrow windows. The batten shutters of odd design set off the windows in an artistic manner.

Second Floor Improved.

Overhead the single window at the end of the building has been removed.

ed. The opening was made larger and now a bay of two windows fill this opening. As usual the windows are flanked on each side by batten shutters.

Overhead in the gable a ventilator has been placed to add architectural to the elevation of the building and to afford air to the small attic.

A dormer window was placed at the left to increase the amount of daylight and ventilation needed on the second floor.

Shingled Sides Effective.

The claims of the manufacturers of stained shingles that this type of siding add to the charm and individuality of the dwelling is born out in this particular installation. The shingle sides aid the effectiveness of the exterior.

A new concrete walk leading to the street finished the exterior improvements of this old house.

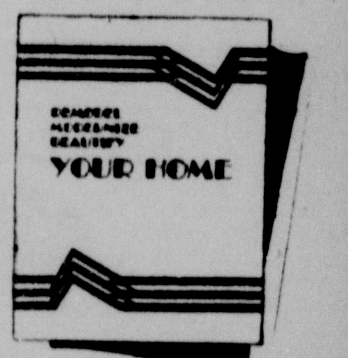

Marked Changes Within.

Stove heat has been eliminated in favor of a warm air furnace which keeps the interior snug and comfortable during the colder months of the year.

The side door opens into a dining room with paneled walls tinted in two shades of yellow. The floor is covered with battislimp linoleum, waxed and polished until it glows like old wood.

And what a change in the kitchen! Gone is the old cook stove and in its place is seen a modern gas stove. The former sink with its wooden drip board was removed and a white enameled affair substituted. Cupboards along the walls conceal the pots and pans when out of use.

John Coolidge's Wedding Belle

Mike Can't Oblige Both

Lucky that these two radio announcers don't work in the same studio or they'd have trouble adjusting the mike. The tall fellow is Jack Hopkins of WJAX, Jacksonville, Fla., and the other is Fred Mizer of WQAM at Miami, Fla. They met recently in Jacksonville at a hearing of the Federal Radio Commission.

"Ket's" Million Dollar Yacht

One of the finest private yachts afloat is this $1,000,000, 170-foot ship launched at Bay City, Mich., for Charles F. The yacht, named the Olive K, will be used by "Ket" in exploring a group of uninhabited islands in the South Seas this fall. It is operated by a Diesel type motor.

By British TroopsLondon, Sept. 14—(AP)—Evacuation of the Rhineland by the British army began today with departure for England of six officers and 60 men from Leicestershire and Dorset

Kongstern and Bude Schwalbach.The first contingent will be followed daily by other contingents until December 13 when the last of the 6,000 British Tommies will be withdrawn and the British flag hailed down.Tom Shaw, Minister of War, in a message to General Sir William fornia was dismissed in federal court here yesterday.The Chicago firm, under contract to sell the grape juice products of the defendant companies, charged customers who bought the juice for wine-making purposes, complained that the product fermented into vinegar and not wine as the defendants had advertised.Federal Judge Charles W. Davis announced dismissal of the suit with a verdict "against the defendants but not for the plaintiffs."The decree, explained by Judge Davis, resulted because litigants contracted to enter and were engaged in executive and unlawfulplan of manufacturing intoxicating liquors.Customers were led to the very peak of anticipation, the verdict continued, "only to awaken to the fact that they had vinegar in the basement."A photostatic copy of a check for $240 signed by J. Pierpont Morgan, for purchase of five barrels of the unfermented grape juice, also was introduced as evidence at the trial.

TO SIGNAL OPERATOR after finishing a conversation, move the hook up and down SLOWLY.A better plan than jiggling the hook up and down rapidly would be to go "holler out the window" it would relieve the feelings more and have the same effect on your telephone operator.The signals at the telephone switchboard are miniature electric lamps, jiggling the hook does not light them, moving it slowly does, thus attracting the attention of the operator.L. H. Ritchie
